POLAN SELLS A RUNNER

Rosilyn Polan, who operates Sunday Morning Farm with her husband Kenneth Ross, turned down an offer of $125,000 as late as last week for her Fasig-Tipton bound colt by El Corredor (Mr. Greeley). The decision to roll the dice paid off handsomely yesterday, as the striking and athletic bay was hammered down for $385,000 just past the midway point of the first session of the Kentucky July Yearlings Sale. "My husband was upset, but he ultimately had confidence in me and I had confidence in the colt," said a teary-eyed Polan, hugging her seven-year-old adopted daughter Laiken, following the sale of hip 172 to prominent California owner B. Wayne Hughes. "I'm startstruck! This is phenomenal. I am thrilled that an owner like B. Wayne Hughes bought him because you know that he's the kind of owner that will give him a chance." It's been a long and winding road for Polan, no stranger to the Newtown Paddocks, albeit in an entirely unrelated way. She used to cater to the barn help on the sales grounds, delivering lunches, and yesterday the favor was returned. "Everybody was so, so complimentary and so free with their comments like, 'oh, I love your colt,' or 'oh, he looks so good,'" she explained. "It makes you feel like a million dollars, so even if he hadn't sold so well, it still would have been good." Polan acquired the dam, Meadow Bryte (Meadowlake), for $51,000 at the 2003 Keeneland November sale carrying the colt. What attracted her to the mare? "Her presence, she had a beautiful walk, a huge rear end. People said, 'oh, well El Corredor' and were skeptical about it. When I saw the mare, I had to have her." Seth Semkin, racing manager for the Hughes operation, was taken by the colt. "I liked him a lot. He had a presence, he's big and he's a very good mover," he commented. "He was very alert and responsive. He was very composed going into the ring and never turned a hair." Semkin indicated that the colt would be sent to Hughes's Spendthrift Farm for the breaking process. A decision on a trainer will follow early next year.
